

Why do they ask so many questions when I call 911?

Receiving dispatchers are trained to get as much information as possible to best determine the nature of a problem and its seriousness or priority to other pending calls. On emergency calls the dispatcher usually has officers already on the way while they are asking for additional information.